Nets Save Lives

One million people in Africa die from malaria each year, with about 90% of these deaths occurring in children under 5 years old. This means that a child dies about every 30 seconds from malaria. The vast majority of these children contract malaria from mosquitoes. According to the 2003 Africa Malaria Report, providing nets for these children to sleep under is considered one of the most effective prevention measures. For about $5 a piece LifeNets can provide urgently needed nets for these children.

Christina Davis of Portland, Oregon has offered to help LifeNets with a lifesaving project in Malawi, Africa where LifeNets has intensely been working the past ten years. Her project is to help raise money for mosquito nets, called "bed nets" in Africa. We can provide bed nets for about $5 apiece. Our distribution will be through Dr. Sam Chilopora for whom LifeNets built a clinic in Balaka, Malawi.
